Factors are: history of discrimination; (2) use of electoral devices or other voting practices that may enhance dilutive effects of a method of election, including at large elections ; (3) the denial of access to the processes to receive financial or other support in a given election; (4) the extent to which members of a protected class bear the effects of past discrimination in areas such as education, employment, and health that hinders their ability to participate effectively in the political process; and (5) the use of overt or subtle racial appeals in political campaigns. “Protected class” means a class of voters who are members of a race, color, or language minority group, as is defined in the Federal Voting Rights Act of 1965, and related federal case law. | EHE; Hearing 2/23 at 1 p.m.; Str.
